ANTI-TOADY.

EDITOR BULLETIN:-In last evening's edition of your excellent journal, Mr. Missionary is to the fore with "ideas" he has forgotten to express. "Howls of partisan enemies" is good, but not goodenough. "Wrong doing" is excel-lent about a party kicked out, and quite true.

"A bloodhound pursuing his prey" is fine writing and we only wish he could catch it.

-We must quote from our "dear friend" Mr. Missionary. "It is painfully apparent that His Majesty's constitutional advisers are irreconcilably divided against themselves." So they were and retired in bad order.

Now, "Us Missionaries look round for some heavenly example." Get to heaven as soon as possible, you are too good for here.

Don't fight with the Archangel Michael about the body of Moses; let the prophet rest, but "Be quick and slip out." War in Heaven and Hawaii are different.

Mr. Missionary says he bets his bottom dollar the National Reform party "will have dissension and quarrels." Probably, as it is not fit for heaven, "alas, alas!"

"The Missionary party from the other islands did not come down here for office." How unselfish, how good, how true, how beautiful! We would sing its praise, but have cracked our voice, so cannot be present at the "love feast."

Later:-"We have now a new Cabinet." True again. Mr. Missionary and men of your description killed the old one and are now on their bended knees praying for the death of this one.

You all die in your beds, and not one member of your clique has ever been "converted" into "long pig." You do not put yourselves in jeopardy. Some missionaries are not in accord with you, and seldom die but by violence and cruelty, but that is too much for you, "Alas! Alas!" Now Mr. Missionary, you have no claim to the name; we believe you are a hanger-on for the sake of pap, there are good missionaries, but ANTI-TOADY. that's not you.

DOINGS OF HARVARD STUDENTS. Boston, June 1 .- Harvard University to-day witnessed the crowning outrage at the hands of its untamed students, yesterday's vic-tories over Yale at New York and Mott Haven having turned the boys' heads. After wild hurrahing and a carousal last night, a band of unknown vandals started out to decorate the college and neighboring portions of the city crimson. They procured a large amount of red paint and smeared it all over everything. Private houses had windows, doors, walls and stone steps marked in huge red letters "Harvard 9, Yale 8," the baseball score yesterday. The handsome bronze statue of John Harvard was painted red and its beautiful granite base ruined. The sacred precincts of Appleton Chapel were invaded and desecrated. On the beautiful mosaic arch in Memorial Hall "To-with Yale" was daubed, and the stone work in all the numerous halls was similarly treated. The damage will reach thousands of dollars, because the porous stone absorbs the paint and it has to be chiseled away. The Faculty are furious. They have bred 2 year old. A Sweepstake of $50 as follows: $5 on Nomination, $10 January 1, 1821, $10 July 1, 1821, $25 January 1, 1822. and it has to be chiseled away. The shut down on all future intercolledents have called a mass meeting also to denounce the vandalism.

The Rector being happily able to fulfil the duties of organist as well as those of precentor, the musical accompaniment of the services has suffered no interruption during the vacancy.

St. Andrew's Cathedral Sewing Society will hold a sale of work on Thursday, June 26. The proceeds of the sale will go to the reduction of the Cathedral debt, to which the Society is bending all its energies. The cause should commend itself to all who have ever worshipped within its walls.

The Sanctuary of the Church of the Holy Innocents, Lahaina, has been much enriched by new hangings, the material for which was purchased by the Rev. W. H. Barnes in London. The high pitched roof of the nave has been underceiled, thereby rendering the building cooler and improving its acoustic properties, as well as giving the interior a more finished appearance. The chief part of the expense of these improvements has been met by local contributions.
